Let's Read!

Max's BUSY School Day

Max is a lively 9-year-old with a head full of blond hair that seems to have its own wild ideas about gravity. With his backpack on, Max makes his way to school. Another day of math, mystery, and mighty good sandwiches awaits him.

Max's BUSY School Day

First up, Math class. Mr. Higgins hands out the assignment, and Max groans. "Twenty questions? That's twenty too many!" he whispers to his friend, Ben, who chuckles quietly.

Max's BUSY School Day

Recess can't come fast enough. As the bell rings, Max and his friends race to the playground, their laughter echoing around the school. Swings are claimed, soccer games start, and Max ends up as the reigning king of the monkey bars.

Max's BUSY School Day

Back in class, Max notices an empty desk. "Where's Lily?" he asks Ben. Ben shrugs. "Maybe she turned into a frog," Ben says, making Max laugh so hard he snorts.

Max's BUSY School Day

Next stop: the cafeteria. Max is excited. His mom has packed his favorite sandwich - cheese, lettuce, pickles, and peanut butter. Some kids think it's strange, but not Max. He takes a big bite and smiles at Ben, who grimaces but smiles back.

Max's BUSY School Day

At the end of the day, Max looks back at his filled assignment, his victory at recess, the mystery of the absent Lily (who has not, in fact, turned into a frog), and his cafeteria adventure. "A busy day," he says, "but time to go home!"

Max's BUSY School Day

"Same time tomorrow?" asks Ben, his eyes sparkling with mischief. Max chuckles, his face lighting up in agreement. "Same time tomorrow," he confirms, and they both laugh, ready to tackle whatever the next school day might bring.

Let's do Grammar!

Gerunds and Infinitives

A gerund is a verb + ing. This makes it a noun!

I like swimming.

An infinitive is to + verb. This can also act as a noun.

I like to swim.

We cannot use "to + swimming"

I like to swimming.

Gerunds and Infinitives

Some verbs can be followed by either a gerund or an infinitive.

begin continue start hate like love prefer

If we use two or more, then we should use the same type.

I like running and climbing.

We usually do not mix them.

I like running and ~~to climb~~.
